

Life & Leadership Coach Joyce White

Joyce White was a pioneer in the field of Leadership Coaching, responding to the needs of this niche and establishing her own business in 1989 to meet this need. She is recognized as a Board Certified Coach (BCC) by the Center for Credentialing and Education, Inc. She obtained both undergraduate and graduate degrees from the State University of New York at Albany and pursued extensive continuing education at Cornell University's School of Industrial and Labor Relations. She has served as an adjunct staff member with the world-renowned Center for Creative Leadership since 1992.

Joyce and her team integrate the latest findings in Leadership and Neuroscience in their work. They consistently produce the results clients seek: career advancement, gains in productivity, increases in sales, superior customer service as well as improved communication, leadership, and conflict management. As a result, successful leaders from a wide range of sectors—business, healthcare, religious, not-for-profit, education, government, and the military—have turned to her for help in leveraging their assets and transforming their limitations. Joyce is certified in many 360 degree feedback assessments, Influencing and Decision Styles Inventories, Conflict Dynamics, Career Architect, and numerous others. (www.newcoachingsolutions.com)

Joyce has worked with pastors, elders, deacons, Christian educators and a host of other Christian workers, both volunteer and paid staff. As a pastor's wife, she and her husband share many ministries including hospitality, mentoring individuals and couples, and conducting Bible Studies. They are currently producing a documentary on Biblical Eldership.
